

Open Source Resources

The most popular open source hosting site is GitHub.

GitHub documentation is written in Markdown. GitHub provides good basic information on Markdown. Markdown has different versions (called “flavors”) and GitHub uses one called GitHub-flavored Markdown.

To find an email address for a GitHub contributor:

1. Go to this URL: <https://api.github.com/users/xxxxxx/events/public>, but substitute the GitHub username where the xxxxxx is.
2. In the returned JSON, search for “email”. The email address is the value of the key named “email”.

Another site for open source projects that’s not used as much as GitHub is SourceForge.
